

___ UNIVERSITY ADMISSIONS ESSAY

I have been dreaming of becoming a pediatrician since I was a young girl. The idea of helping others has been one of the prominent threads in my life; and I was able to turn my childhood dream into a specific goal. Applying for ___ University Pre-medicine course is a conscious choice on the way to that goal. What makes me a particularly viable candidate for this program is the fact that I am a well-balanced individual. Strong academic achievement and motivation, active participation in the life of community, and deep grounding in moral values will make me a valuable and positive addition to any learning, and later professional, community.

The academic excellence is one of my strengths, being the result of both passion and dedication. Throughout my educational career I have shown good results in such subjects as ____, and _____. My Honor Classes include ____, and _____. Moreover, I am good at sports and an active and regular participant in classroom discussions. The dedication to my studies culminated when I passed High School Proficiency Assessment (HSPA) from the first attempt. Reflecting on these achievements, I feel confident that I will put the same amount of effort in my college career.

Besides the academic achievement, active involvement in social issues sets me apart from other candidates. For example, I am a member of various clubs, such as _____, _____, and _____. As a part of my extracurricular activities in these clubs I was involved in the school homecoming project as well as helped raise money for the people in need and for _____ victims. These experiences influenced me profoundly and pushed to become even more open-minded and caring person. I have a great interest in supporting others in and out of the classroom because it brings me a deep sense of inner satisfaction that goes far beyond mere goal-achievement. I am convinced that the ability to empathize with other people and find a way to help them in difficult situation is an important aspect of my chosen career; that is why I believe that I will make a good student in this particular program.

Both the academic and the social aspects of my life are grounded in strong moral values, which are indispensable in any career and life choice. I participate in a number of church projects, like a “_____” project where we taught the children different subjects. We taught them about personal hygiene and cooked and provided meals to them. Overall, we worked very closely with the community for their needs. My other church work includes singing in the choir, babysitting children, helping elderly, dancing in the _____ of the church, and participating in the youth group. Another important fact is that my church in the USA consists of people from different parts of the world, for example, Brazil, Ecuador, or Portugal; and I attend the school that is also rather multicultural. My awareness and appreciation of various cultural backgrounds will make me a suitable person for a diverse learning community of _____. I have lived in two different countries, so I have a strong understanding of how one's identity is important and that it is crucial to cherish the differences between people.

The experiences and personal characteristics described above all contribute to my profile as a prospective ____ student. My volunteer work with people in need, the leadership work in church and in the school settings as well as academic achievement and development in a variety of areas will help me adjust more smoothly to a college life. Moreover, they will allow me to bring unique flavor to this new community. The profession of pediatrician is in my heart as well as mind, which is a constant source of passion, determination to achieve my goal, and do this in a responsible way.
